Scott re-elected in Conservative sweep

Daniel finishes second, Liberal Glass comes third

Progressive Conservative incumbent Bill Scott was elected to his eighth successive term in the federal riding of Victoria/Haliburton Tuesday night, a victory given added impetus by a tidal wave for change that drowned Liberal hopes nation wide and swept the Tories into an overwhelming majority.

Scott's victory came as no surprise in a riding that has been solidly conservative for the past 39 years, but his margin of victory was impressive. The Kinmount resident drew an unofficial total of 33,172 votes, almost three times more than his two closest rivals, Liberal Bruce Glass and NDP hopeful Patrick Durnin.

County are as follows:

Advance poll, Haliburton: Bill Scott, 156, Bruce Glass, 58, Patrick Daniel 44, Robert Durnin 3, George Kerr 3.

Oxtongue: Daniel 9, Durnin 0, Glass 11, Kerr 1, Scott 75.

Dorset 2: Daniel 34, Durnin 0, Glass 46, Kerr 6, Scott 108.

Club 35: Daniel 22, Durnin 0, Glass 37, Kerr 2, Scott 139.

Stanhope 4: Daniel 31, Durnin 1, Glass 61, Kerr 0, Scott 151.

West Guilford 5: Daniel 8, Durnin 0, Glass 8, Kerr 1, Scott 28.

West Gullford 6: Daniel 39, Durnin 1, Glass 52, Kerr 3, Scott 175.

No easy solutions ... see page 4

Daniel finished a surprised second, polling 11,807 votes on behalf of the NDP, whose fortunes nation wide were boosted by the voters anti Liberal sentiments and the seasoned campaign performance of Ed Broadbent.

Liberal hopeful Bruce Glass finished a close third to Daniel, garnering 11,331 votes. Trailing the field were Green Party candidate George Kerr and Libertarian Robert Durnin.

Early returns indicated that Scott would not face a serious threat from his NDP and Liberal opponents, and a buoyant mood prevailed in the PC headquarters in Lindsay. Shortly before 10 p.m., Liberal candidate Bruce Glass conceded victory to Scott, while national television coverage indicated a stunning majority was in the making for Brian Mulroney and the Progressive Conservative Party.

Final election totals showed 211 of the 282 federal seats going to the Conservatives. The Liberals were slashed to only 40 seats, while the NDP did better than many pundits had predicted, ending up with 30 seats. One independent, Tony Roman, won in York North, but he is expected to cross over to the Conservatives when parliament resumes.

Voter turnout in Victoria Haliburton was heavy, with approximately 86 percent of those eligible to vote casting a ballot.

Fair a success despite rain on Sunday

Livestock show, other competitions drew hundreds of entrants

Rain showers and cool temperatures on Sunday kept attendance figures lower than anticipated for this year's Kinmount Fair, but the weather didn't dampen the enthusiasm of competitors who vied for prizes in hundreds of categories.

Secretary Guy Scott said between 22,000 and 24,000 people were on hand for this year's fair, a drop of about 12 per cent from last year. Overall, however, organizers were pleased with this year's fair, and those who attended were not disappointed with the number and quality of the attractions.

The annual Warriors Day parade on Saturday attracted a total of 14 Legions, a record number.

The award for the best non commercial vehicle in the parade went to Camp Chimo from the Kinmount area. The best decorated bicycle was entered by Joe Dettman of Kinmount. The best single entry in the costume walking category was Geanine Woodrow. The prize for the best costumed group went to Robin and Michael Perry of Fenelon Falls.

In the heavy horse draw, on Saturday, the winner was Mac McGillivray from Cardiff. Winner of the light class was Murray Cowen of Haliburton.

Bicroft backs grant review

Councillors of Bicroft Township have joined their counterparts from Lutterworth in advocating a withdrawal of county council funds for the Chamber of Commerce.

At a meeting last Thursday, Bicroft council passed a resolution expressing support for cutting off the county grant for 1985 "based on past performance" of the Chamber. The Bicroft resolution concludes by stating that the grant ($60,000 for 1984), should "not be reinstated until such time as the Chamber has resolved its differences with county council".

Bicroft is the only other council so far to openly express support for the Lutterworth resolution, which has come as a harsh blow to Chamber supporters.

The issue is expected to be aired at a meeting of county council later this month, at which time the Chamber will present a report on its activities and outline how money granted by county council has been used.

Police News

General Occurrences

During the period August 27 to September 2, personnel at Minden detachment investigated the following occurrences: 21 motor vehicle accidents in which 8 persons were injured; and 99 general occurrences including 11 break and enters, nine damage complaints and seven thefts.

This week will see some dewy eyes in both mothers and children as offsprings commence their first experience with being on their own - kindergarten.

School bus drivers throughout the County say their biggest concern involves these parent - children reunions. When the child returns from school by bus and runs to the arms of their parents they may be running straight into danger. Police say to all parents who may be faced with the above situation, should remember this simple but vitally important safety rule: When waiting for your child to return from school by bus, never wait on the opposite side of the roadway. When your child leaves the bus and sees you, you will be the only thing on his or her mind. Any safety rules you may have taught will be forgotten. You will be the focus and your child will dash to be with you with no thought whatsoever of any traffic in the area.

Labour Day Weekend

The usual increase in minor occurrences was experienced but nothing of a major nature occurred. Theft investigations, noise complaints and complaints of nuisance dirt bikes made up the bulk of the occurrences.

Haliburton Break-In

Sunday night two complaints were received of persons in Haliburton Village acting in a wierd manner - running through the streets, fighting, and yelling. A short time later, the Good Medical Centre was found to have been broken into and a quantity of drugs stolen. Charges are pending against two, and possibly three, Haliburton area youths. The investigation by Constables Pearson, Bibby and Irving is continuing.

Beware of penny stocks

Novice investors should beware of high pressure telephone sales people promising big profits on 'penny' mining stocks, warns John Leybourne, Deputy Director of Enforcement with the Ontario Securities Commission (OSC).

"The penny stock game has the same allure as Las Vegas style gambling," said Leybourne. "All that seems to matter to some would-be speculators is the potential for big profits. The high risk factor is virtually ignored".

"Although penny stocks can offer potentially high profits for the informed investor, the general public must realize that losses on these types of highly speculative ventures can be great". Low cost penny stocks generally promote exploration ventures in mining or oil and gas properties. In Ontario they are sold over-the-counter by broker-dealers.

Before any securities can be sold to the public, a full disclosure prospectus must be filed with the OSC.

Chamber directors support manager

Directors of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce have voted unanimously to support the organization's manager, Emily Skinner, despite criticism levelled at her by Lutterworth reeve Ron Gambell.

Gambell, who resigned at the end of July as one of two county council representatives on the Chamber, claimed recently that the Chamber board made a mistake when it chose Skinner for the manager's job.

But at a special meeting last week, the Chamber executive reaffirmed their choice of Skinner and gave her their full backing.

Chamber president Ken Langdon of Haliburton will head a Chamber delegation which will report to county council later this month in a bid to improve strained relations between the two bodies.

What now

Tuesday was a day of surprise and elation in Canada - surprise at the scope of the nation's disenchantment with the Liberals, and elation at the prospect of new and vigorous leadership. As the returns poured in and it became clear that the Tories would be swept into power after 20 years of Liberal dominance, it was tempting to believe that old ideas, entrenched attitudes, smugness and indifference were being washed away, and that Wednesday would bring fresh breezes and a clear horizon. The people had spoken, and as John Turner said in accepting his party's defeat, the people are never wrong.

But buoyant hopes for a better Canada must be tempered with the realization that no leader has a magic wand to wave. No party, no matter how overwhelming its mandate, can affect change overnight. Nor can shaken confidence be bolstered with smooth words and more spending. It will take more than campaign rhetoric to articulate the policies to deal with unemployment, the deficit, regional alienation and an unwieldy tax system. It will take time to think clearly and wisdom to withstand the force of special interests.

The Tory victory may prove a boon to the nation's fortunes, but the sheer size of Mulroney's majority is disconcerting. The parliamentary systems effectiveness as much on the power of the opposition parties as on the ruling party. With a diminished opposition, the Tories may be tempted to listen too closely to their own voices and turn a deaf ear to the criticisms of others. As well, Mulroney will find himself overwhelmed with back benchers, some of whom have been waiting a long time to sit on the decision making side of the house. His caucus could prove unwieldy, representing as it does a broad spectrum of interests, all the way from the poverty wracked outports of Newfoundland to the disgruntled, alienated ridings of the far west, for whom Ontario is a foreign land.

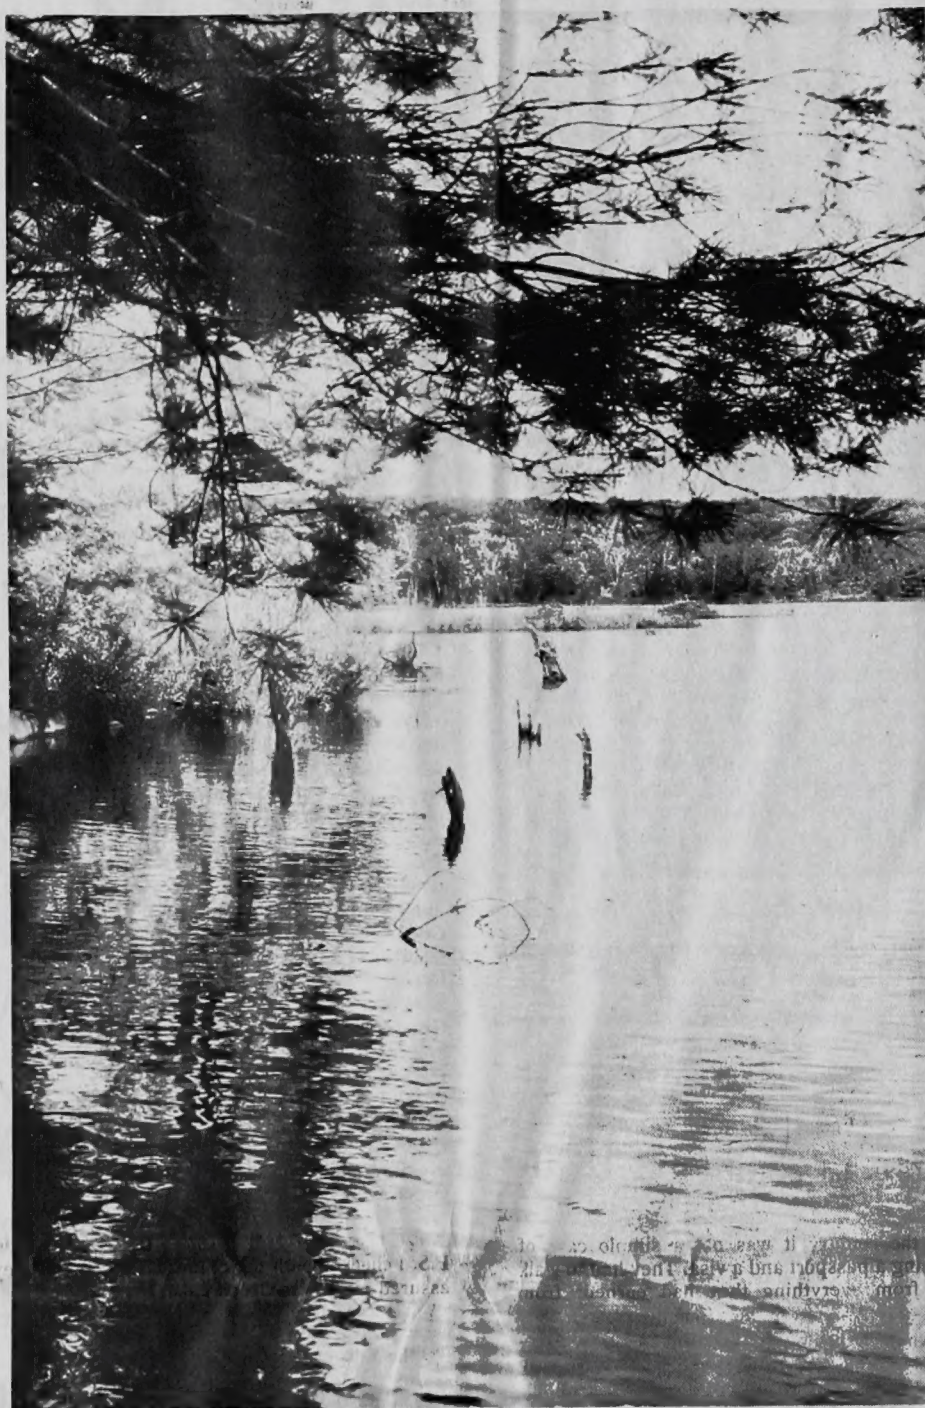

There will be no simple solutions to the nation's problems, and the voters who cast out the Liberals are not likely to be fooled by programs which place job training ahead of private sector job creation or affirmative action ahead of a just tax system.

Tuesday night's election results may indeed mark the beginning of a new era in Canadian politics. But the character of that era will not be known for months, and perhaps years, to come.

Your right

A weekly newspaper plays many roles in the community it serves, but none of these roles more important than that of providing a forum through which readers may comment on issues that touch their lives. In that role the newspaper must act impartially, affording everyone an equal opportunity to be heard, within the bounds of legality and good taste. The alternative to freedom of expression is censorship, precisely the kind of censorship that is practised by totalitarian governments throughout the world.

It is inevitable that some letters to the editor will tread on the toes of local people, whether they be politicians, merchants, members of organizations, or merely private citizens. It is inevitable too, that some letters will critical of stories and editorials that appear in the newspaper. This atmosphere of criticism and comment is a healthy one, for it is proof not only that we are a nation where freedom of expression is encouraged, but that people care enough about the world around them to want to make it better. Writing a letter to the editor is an assertion of a fundamental right to be heard. Readers are encouraged to exercise it as often as they choose.

Letters to the Editor

Reader cleans up unsightly tree

To the Editor:

I take this opportunity to introduce myself to your readers. I have been coming up to this beautiful Haliburton County for the past 12 years in order to spend weekends hiking and cross-country skiing. The flora and wildlife that I have observed have been very precious to me - even driving along the highways through the beautiful forests in this area is a pleasure for the eyes.

It disturbs me however to see garbage thrown along the highway and I make it a habit to walk along the road in the vicinity of my property to collect the debris i.e. beer and liquor bottles, empty pop cans, etc.

Some time ago, someone got the idea of hammering an old pair of shoes to a tree nearby. At the end of this past month, there were about 300 old shoes of every possible description. This debris on the tree certainly was unsightly. However, it was only after two near traffic accidents that I decided to act.

When I made my usual garbage collection trip along the highway, I also decided to remove the old shoes. A number of cars stopped and applauded and said that at last someone was removing this eyesore.

One exception was a gentleman who lives in this area. He stopped his truck and shouted at me. "What are you doing? Are you crazy or some sort of Kook?" His interest or involvement in defacing the highway was never made clear to me. After much name calling, he finally left to call the OPP. As I continued with my work several more cars stopped and all expressed their support of my clean up.

I was almost finished when a car with four unidentified persons arrived. They jumped out and berated my action - "saying that I had no authorization to remove old shoes". Readers, during the past 12 years I have never thought it was necessary to get authorization to remove litter from the highway. What do you think? My answer to the question was to ask if the person who put up these old shoes had "authorization". The group of four continued with their name calling. The older lady in the group kept repeating "don't you know this is Canada," which indicates to me that she thought that people living in this country had the right to do as they pleased, including the defacing of our highways. She also stated that I may very well be forced to put these old shoes back on the tree. What sort of thinking is this? There is a law and a fine for littering.

Let's say for a moment that there wasn't a law against highway littering and let's suppose some of you readers think that old shoes on a tree are beautiful. How many of you would like to have someone stop in front of your home and hammer 300 old shoes on a tree? What if more people took on this fad and started to hang old shoes, socks, ties, underwear and whatever on trees along the highway. Is this the way you would like to see our wilderness beautified?

The group of four then proceeded to take the eight garbage bags of old shoes and place them in their car. They said that as soon as I had finished, they were going to put them back up. My plans of course was to take the old shoes directly to the garbage dump.

Since an important principle of law and a question of the environment was involved, I talked to Bill Scott about this incident. He said he had no opinion on the matter and had better things to do. I must admit his lack of concern surprised me.

For my part, I hope my clean up initiative will lead to enforcement of the anti-litter laws and will prevent further development of what very well could be a beginning fad of "perma-littering" along our highways.

To the Editor:

Where is it carved in stone, that every letter to the editor must be printed?

This past summer we have been overwhelmed with complaints from summer residents regarding attitudes, personalities, business hours, cleanliness or lack of it, accessibility, parking, or lack of parking, high municipal taxes, poor cottage roads, too many restaurants, too few restaurants, etc.?

Whatever happened to those lazy, crazy days of summer. Well, the answer to that particular question seems to be that they have come and gone and are over for another year. I think that we all have to admit that the so called tourist season is a short one and if you think that you can make a year round living in just two short months start thinking again. It just can't be done. The Labour Day weekend is over and the children have returned to school. The weather is starting to turn much cooler and the summer of 1984 is now history. During the past summer, I think that in most cases the weather was very good with a few exceptions when it rained. Some days the humidity reached peaks where it was very hard to breathe, but most nights it cooled off for a good night's sleep. If business wasn't good in some areas this summer I don't think we can blame it on the weather; we will have to look for some other reason. When you stop and think about it, even though every day wasn't perfect as far as the weather conditions were concerned, those vacationing in the Haliburton Highlands really didn't have too much to complain about. In looking back over the past summer there is one feature of the two month period that seems to be very hard to come up with an answer. The question is "Were there as many people here this summer as compared with the same time period a year ago?" In talking with local citizens and business people we come with conflicting answers. A few people told us that there were more people around as there was a year ago. To sum up, some say that business has been really good, and that they are more than satisfied, while others say that it was a mediocre summer with plenty of people, but they were not spending money. The remainder report that business was down and that they will be lucky to break even with last year. With inflation being what it is today, breaking even or doing the exact same business that you did a year ago just isn't good enough.

Now that the summer is over we can turn our attention to the fall and what some people think is the loveliest time of the year. There is no doubt that the months of September and October can be beautiful and it won't be too much longer before the leaves will be coming out in their majestic colours and the bus tours to the Highlands will be getting underway. The fall is also a great time for the movie and camera buffs who like to be here when the leaves are at their peak as far as the colours are concerned. If you are one of those people who have never had the opportunity of coming back to the Haliburton Highlands to see the leaves, why not make this year a first. Bring back the entire family and breathe in that good old fall air.

Preparations are being made for the fourth annual United Church, Haliburton Pastoral Charge outdoor worship and potluck picnic to be held once again at Birch Point Lodge this coming Sunday, September 9. Indoor worship will be held at Lochlin at 9:30 a.m. and the outdoor worship will be at Birch Point Lodge at 11 a.m. with a potluck picnic and games following. (In case of rain, outdoor worship and picnic will be held at the High School).

The Rotary Club of Haliburton had a very interesting programme recently when Bill Emmerson introduced his cottage neighbour Murray Firth, an air controller at Pearson International Airport. Murray explained the rigorous training and exams a controller must pass and all the various aspects of the job as well as a "VCR" taped presentation on air control at the airport. He also told of various experiences at the airport.

George Knudson, who has confined his tremendous golf talents mostly to teaching the past few years, will come out of his competitive semi-retirement to compete in the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association Championship at Spring Lakes Golf Club, September 13 to 16. George, who is well known in this area, conducted a clinic around the Club house at the PineStone Inn and Country Club when they held the official opening of the PineStone 18 hole golf course at Haliburton on Monday, August 18. Rick Fraser, writing in his Golf Notebook column in the Toronto Star, said that Knudson who is now 47, once described by the great Ben Hogan as having "the best swing of the present generation," won the Canadian PGA crown five times in the period from 1964 to 1977. During 16 years on the U.S. tour, he won eight events and close to $600,000. He also won four times in the Caribbean tour. He represented Canada in the World Cup nine times. In 1966, he won individual honours, and in 1968 he teamed with Al Balding to win the World Cup.

There is something coming up this week that I am sure will interest the kids and adults alike. The Rotary Club of Haliburton in co-operation with the CBS records are presenting a free children's concert featuring "But I'm Just A Kid" at the J.D. Hodgson Elementary School this coming Sunday afternoon, September 9 at 2:00 p.m. Kids in the 4-10 age group are asked to come out for this concert and to bring along their parents.

We are pleased to report that Jack Boughner of Haliburton is improving every day following two operations at the Civic Hospital in Peterborough where he is at present a patient. We understand that with any luck, Jack could be home in less than two weeks. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Thoughts for the morning after the election

by Reverend John James
It's always interesting to observe the lawn signs in an election campaign. Particularly in a small town. "Well, so and so is voting for the (blank) party." The other day I noticed signs representing two different political parties on the lawns of two individuals whom I know to be good friends. And I wondered to myself, "Did this campaign get in the way of a long time relationship?" Then I thought, "I hope not. I hope those two are still friends the morning after."

Political feelings can run deep at times. David MacDonald, former cabinet minister from P.E.I., has said "On the Island when we speak of a mixed marriage, we don't mean a Protestant marrying a Catholic, we mean a Liberal marrying a Conservative."

But I hope, that after the election there are not too many people thinking "Rats! We lost. No more politics for me." I have learned something during this campaign. The teacher though was not one of the party leaders or one of the local candidates for that matter. My political sensitivity was deepened by a young woman who fled from Czechoslovakia a few years ago. Her name is Dagmar and she has a camper trailer next to ours at a local campground. Dagmar shared with us the story of her flight from her homeland. It was a tale of mystery and intrigue.

When Dagmar and her husband decided to leave the country it was not a simple case of obtaining a passport and a visa. They had to walk away from everything they had earned, from everyone they knew, and from everything they had worked to build. The only way out of Czechoslovakia was to pretend they were leaving the country for a few weeks on a summer vacation. Sufficient clothes could be packed for a three week period. Everything else they owned was left in the apartment, never to be seen again.

As I explained to Dagmar about our election procedures, about the different parties, about the variations in their policies and priorities, she laughed. Out loud. She put her head back and roared with laughter. "In Czechoslovakia," she said, "there is only one name on the ballot. There is no choice. You don't know how lucky you are in Canada."

As I reflected on Dagmar's words I thought of what some people call 'losing their vote' in an election when their candidate is defeated. But in my view on Tuesday we were all winners. Simply by participating in the election procedure, by marking a ballot for the candidate or party of our choice we were involved in a process that the majority of people in our world have no access to. The real losers in Canada were those people who were to cynical to vote.

As I walked into the voting booth I knew that however I marked my ballot I was a winner. And I thanked God for that.

Queen's Park Report

The recently released report on the Task Force on the Allocation of Health Care Resources, confirms what my colleagues and I have been arguing for more than two years: our health care system is in urgent need of major reform.

The recommendations made by the Task Force to the Canadian Medical Association are consistent with deficiencies we have documented in recent years, from the over-institutionalization of senior citizens, to the lack of provision of mental health care and the strain on existing hospital beds which is leading to great hardship for many people in Ontario.

It is worth noting testimony at the recent inquest into the death of 47 year-old Abshez at the Sunnybrook Medical Centre in May. Dr. Charles Tator, head of the Centre's neurosurgery ward, blamed her death on failure to admit her earlier as a patient -- due to the critical bed shortage in Ontario hospitals.

The doctor's comments are a condemnation of the health care system as it now exists in this province. To quote: "This should not happen in this day and age; there should be improved access to hospital bed availability. The source of the problem and the solution are beyond the doors of Sunnybrook."

You will no doubt recall that my colleagues and I have documented similar concerns and have raised these issues in the Ontario Legislature numerous times over the past two years. We have talked about the bed shortage crisis in Ottawa, Kingston, London and elsewhere, and also the need to re-open the 21-bed unit in Lindsay which has remained closed for a number of years. We have expressed grave concerns about the lack of mental health care and adequate medical personnel for people in our Northern communities. On every occasion, the health minister of the day downplayed the extent of the problem.

In its study of Ontario's health care system in the spring of 1982, the Liberal Task Force warned: "There is a time bomb ticking in Ontario ... a time bomb which most Ontarians cannot hear ... yet the impending explosion in our medicare system threatens each and every one of us... There is a very real possibility by the year 1985, health care as we know it could be a fond and fading memory."

Surely, now that an independent group has confirmed the validity of these observations, the government of Premier Davis has an obligation to initiate the major reforms we have recommended.

The letters you have published these past three months regarding the laundromat in town, have amounted to a personal vendetta against a local business man. The Echo might be wiser to forward the complaints to the parties concerned, for direct contact with the injured authors. (as does Star Probe)

Ms. Parker is correct when she claims we derive our living from tourism. A ten week period of frenzy followed by forty two weeks of careful budgeting to assure we are here next spring when we are needed by our summer residents.

Give us a break, Mr. Editor, file some of those letters to the editor in the trash can, where they belong.

Rolly Letourneau,
Eagle Lake,
[year round resident]

To the Editor:

I have been tempted to write this letter for some time now, but delayed it until I read an article in your paper last week. Several years ago I bought a property on what the real estate agent described as Green Lake. He told me there used to be two Grass Lakes so the government - not wanting to have people confused - changed the name of this lake to Green Lake.

Well my tax notice still reads Grass Lake and early this spring on Highway 35 a large brown sign told everyone to turn up highway #118 to the Grass Lake tourist area. Then a green sign was placed on #118 pointing to Green Lake - telling everyone that this is indeed Grass Lake. Only the Township of Stanhope seems to know that the name was changed, as they posted a sign at the end of our road, naming it the Green Lake road. Good for them! There has been a resort on the lake for quite a few years now called the Green Lake Resort and yet your correspondent for the West Guilford area still referred to the lake as Grass Lake in your paper last week. I tell friends and relations that I live on Green Lake and when they come to visit me they find it referred to as Grass Lake.

I think that the signs should be changed the tax notices should be changed and then maybe everyone will then call it by its' proper name - Green Lake.

Yours sincerely,
D. George Martin

P.S. I checked with the municipal office and they assured me it was Green Lake.

To the Editor:

Just a few questions I would like to ask, regarding the seemingly apathetic attitude some of the stores appear to have towards the tourist. For example, why do people have to wait in the parking lot for the grocery stores to open and others line up at the pumps, waiting for the gas stations to open on Sundays? It sure seems to me that during the summer, the stores could make a lot more money and offer people a great deal of convenience if they were open a few hours earlier and perhaps stayed open an hour later. This doesn't bother the residents to much because they have all week to shop. But tourists are sometimes here for a few short days and spending an hour in a parking lot or gas station waiting for them to open is not a good memory to have of Haliburton. I bet a lot of tourists would love to spend their money here, if they could find some place that's open to spend it in.

I realize that everyone needs their day of rest, but, for a town that's so largely dependent on tourism the store owners should save all that resting until the snow flies.

To the Editor:

I read with dismay your lead article over the problems with the Chamber of Commerce. As a long time summer resident I would like to comment.

A recent study done by the Muskoka Council discovered that summer residents and part time visitors put $91,000,000 in the area coffers. I was so impressed with the article that I passed it on to local residents for their comments. The average cottager in Muskoka spends $4700. a year in the area. If that isn't primary industry I don't know what is!

Now for many years Haliburton has been overlooked in favour of the Muskoka's and I feel the major reason is the lack of a concentrated and coordinated approach to marketing. That what your Chamber of Commerce has been doing. I've read about and heard about more "Haliburton Happenings" in the past two years than in the past 35. Of course you've had your growing pains and will as time goes by have programs that will be less than successful but the system is working.

As I see it the Haliburton area needs to be promoted by a Haliburton Chamber of Commerce. Yes, the larger centres like Haliburton and Minden will get more press but the spinoff benefits will affect everybody county-wide.

The regional bickering should stop now. Why not do a survey of your seasonal residents and use the results to improve the marketing of all Haliburton. If you work together everybody benefits. If you don't, I won't have to contend with as much traffic as I drive up here. Which way would you rather have it?

Think about it.

Sincerely,
P. Markle,
Agingcourt, Ont.

Question

by CATHERINE DENHOLM

It is a momentous occasion when I find a personal letter from a friend or family in the mail. It somehow slows down the pace of living just to sit and read and reread someone's ideas, thoughts and activities. It is better than the demanding ring of the telephone with the same instant information, which is pleasant to hear, but cannot be digested to the same degree.

Some years ago writing thankyou letters to aunts and grandparents was the first lesson children had in creative writing. Children had, at the insistence of parents, to not only say thankyou for something they did not always like or remember, but they were required to make the letter "newsy" with family happenings. The phone has relieved them of that burden, but it has also taken away that first attempt at passable prose.

Of course all letters are not a pleasure. There are the "dear friend" ones we all get advocating the purchase of something, the sending of funds for some cause or the filling in a form which will bet you a bargain or a prize. These are the letters we wish would go out of style.

Letters we write can be powerful. I am told that when a member of legislature makes a policy proposal statement and receives as few as fourteen letters either questioning or approving he or she is influenced by that many comments. This indicates that we should be taking notes of all promises made by politicians or would-be politicians during an election campaign then sharpen our letter-writing skills to ask when the issues which interested us most will be implemented.

Do you suppose that writing many letters condemning the nuclear build-up might prove a

Dennys, Bernie Nicholls, Tran LaRue, Dan Mawbey, Bernie Upton, Dwight Sisson, Erin Nicholls.

Bernie Nicholls hurls no hitter as Lumbermen outplay Kinsmen

Haliburton Lumber needed only two games to wrap up the championship of the Haliburton men's recreational baseball league. The Lumbermen took home the trophy last Thursday night on the strength of a 4-0 victory over the Haliburton Kinsmen, who were held to only four hits, and scored no runs in either of the matches.

Tuesday night's opener was dominated by Haliburton Lumber pitcher Bernie Nicholls, who hurled a no hitter and scored one of his team's two runs.

Both runs were chalked up in the first inning, as Dave Nicholls singled and stole a base, Bernie Nicholls also singled and stole a base, and Dwight Sisson followed up with a sacrifice fly that enable the runs to cross.

Nicholls faced 23 batters through seven innings, hitting one with a pitch, walking another, and striking out 11 on his way to the only no hitter pitched this year.

The second game of the final of Thursday night was closer in the early innings, but the Lumbermen took over in the top of the third and were never seriously threatened.

Lead off hitter Tran LaRue was walked by Kinsmen pitcher Barry Shaw, then stole a base to move into scoring position. But LaRue was tagged out on his way to the plate when Bernie Nicholls hit a ground ball into a fielder's choice. That ended any threat from the Lumbermen in the top of the first.

The Kinsmen got a man in scoring position in the bottom half as Barry Shaw singled and stole second, but he was stranded by the third out.

Neither side produced any runs in the second inning, although the Kinsmen notched two singles and a walk that left three men on.

Rod Sisson led off with a single for the Lumbermen in the top of the third, but he was thrown out at third when Dan Mawby hit into a fielder's choice.

tripped, then scored on Bernie Upton's follow up double. In the top of the fifth, Tran LaRue singled, stole second, then completed the circuit on a triple from Dave Nicholls.

Team gets Dawson trophy

Dave Nicholls' two out single brought Mawby across, and Bernie Nicholls followed up with a triple that scored his brother to give Haliburton Lumber a two run advantage.

The four runs were all Haliburton Lumber needed to ensure victory in the series, and bring the season to an end.

Cliff Dawson presented members of the winning team with the Dawson Insurance trophy at the end of the game.

Haliburton Kinsmen pitcher Barry Shaw delivers the pitch during the championship game of the Haliburton mens league on Thursday. The game and series went to Haliburton Lumber.

Haliburton Juniors win ladies softball crown

The Haliburton Juniors hammered out a 15-12 victory in Minden last Thursday night to win the championship of the Haliburton ladies softball league in the fifth and deciding game.

It was a comeback victory for the Juniors, who fell two games behind the Minden Srs. in the early going, then rallied for three successive wins.

Haliburton took a 2-1 lead in the first inning as Pam Iles and Marla MacNaull completed the circuit, while Barb Winn got Minden's only run.

Haliburton got three more in the second inning, while Minden could manage only two, from Laurie Brown and Marg Fielding. Scoring for Haliburton were Tracy Harrison, Melissa Creelman and Marg Smith.

The game remained close through the third inning as Sue Pye and Laurie Brown made it home for the Srs. while the Juniors got only one run, from Michelle Harrison.

Minden failed to score in the fourth inning, while Haliburton added two additional runs to their total, Jodie McKnight and Marla MacNaull each crossing the plate safe.

Minden also was unable to score in the fifth inning, while the Haliburton squad continued their impressive performance at the plate adding five more runs. Scoring were Pam Iles, Jodie

McKnight, Marla MacNaull, Tracy Harrison and Melissa Creelman.

The sixth inning was the pivotal of the match. Minden got back on track and hammered out an incredible seven runs before Haliburton could put a stop to the assault and save a one run lead. The drive began with two batters out. Scoring were Trish Slavik, Barb Winn, Nelda Culley, Helen Burk, Sue Pye, Jane Symmonds and Laurie Brown.

Haliburton came back with two more runs in the inning however, from Pam Iles and Melissa Creelman, and the margin proved to be enough, earning the Haliburton squad a 15-12 win and the championship.

Tournaments set

Haliburton's minor hockey organization has set dates for the four tournaments scheduled to be held in the coming season.

The tournament schedule will begin on Saturday, December 1 with a one day Bantam tournament. The following Saturday, December 8, a one day Midget tourney will take place.

Biggest tournament of the winter is a three day PeeWee event which will begin Friday, January 11, and continue through Sunday, January 13.

Rounding out the year's tournaments, a one day Atom event will be held on Saturday, January 26.

THE HALIBURTON COUNTY ECHO AND MINDEN RECORDER

Northern Lights

by VIRGINIA MUENZEL

Whew! What a week. What a month! We have had more spur-of-the-moment, spontaneous company, and/or outings in the last few weeks than in the last year. But they're the best, you know. All those planned parties can go amok if one little detail goes wrong. Like the weather, for instance. And, let's face it, summer get-togethers need good weather.

We've been very lucky just lately. And every nice day seems to bring a light a need to celebrate the glory of the sunshine. We've met some great new people, and introduced Haliburton, and Buffalo friends to each other with international success. Mostly, because of inner tubes.

I'm afraid I started a dangerous precedent, when I revealed how we liked to spend our sunny summer afternoons. To date, we have taken some two dozen people down the river. So far, only one very short person didn't make it. Poor Sharon, she was quite nervous to begin with, being a bonafide, dyed-in-the-wool city girl, who doesn't like to get more than ten paces away from her coffee or cigarettes. It's not that she's physically inactive. This middle-aged lady roller skates, tap dances, and paints. She even loves our scenery. But the thought of being at the mercy of a moving current of water that wasn't locked up in a twenty-four foot swimming pool, where one could see just how far one had to go, made her somewhat hesitant. However, I'll give her credit, she was willing to try. Unfortunately, (as I said, she is very short) when she flopped into the tube, she couldn't reach the water with her hands. And as luck would have it, she quickly ended up in a puddle with no current.

Meanwhile, the other six of us were well on our way, not aware of what was happening to her. All we know was she was hollering something sounding slightly profane to the fellow who delivered us to the bridge. We waited at the first shallow bend, until finally, my son came down on her tube to convey the message that Sharon had forthwith been hauled out of the river, and had left quickly for the security of another coffee on the back porch, where she knew where she was at. She declined to try again.

I have it on the best authority, medically speaking, that a trip down the river on a tube is good for what ails you. At least if you're tense and up-tight from the pressure of the rate race or life's little aggravations. The cruise can't be rushed, and for around an hour and a half, the most important thing one has to worry about is not getting hung up in an over-hanging bush. Otherwise, you have lots of time to ponder over cloud formations, what is the name of that bright red flower, and when do you suppose the cranberries will be ripe enough to pick.

Not that we don't occasionally have a bit of excitement. The first time we ventured down this summer, while the water was low, we discovered a brand new beaver dam. At that time, we had to get off the tubes and climb over it. Everything was fine, except one of those springy twigs snapped me on the back of the leg, leaving a lovely welt.

Later on the water level rose considerably, giving us a natural flow over the dam on the left side. Which worked fine until the day Judy and I took a bunch of novices down. Even then, it would have been alright, but two of the girls had to share a tube, which greatly limits one's control of direction. Consequently, they hit the dam dead

Well readers, by the time this letter reaches you the election will be over and so, the experts say the Tories will win, the Liberals they must go. But even experts sometimes make mistakes. We just hope who ever wins will have what it takes.

There wasn't too much activity over the weekend here at Hyland Crest. Mary Oliver's family took her out to dinner, then for a nice drive.

Mrs. Stutt's daughter Ruth and two great grandsons, came to visit her Saturday night.

For some of our residents the flu has taken its toll. As for callers over the weekend, I didn't have a soul.

Our sympathy from all here to Ralph Danill in the loss of his daughter.

In the chapel service, Sunday night, with the Thompson's still away, no-one to read the lesson or the music to play. Rev. Burgess is always ready to solve problems great or small. He took his message from Hebrews chp. 9, where Christ died to save us all.

Rev. John's mother came home from hospital, so his wife Mary didn't attend the service at all. She stayed with her mother in case she might fall.

Our deepest sympathy to Norma Barron for the loss of her dear husband who has just passed away.

As I write this letter we have Carrie Jones back from hospital feeling some better.

Readers, if you have some old furniture you want to look like new, take it to Angus Coulter, he'll know what to do.

To Chantel McKnight who helped here during the summer holidays: you have won the hearts of all here, with your helping hand and willing ways. You have been so helpful through the school holidays. We hope you have a successful year and with health and happiness you will be blessed. This is the wish from all here at the Crest.

The movies Monday night were really grand, Steam Stone and Ellsmereiland.

Tuesday morning Rev. John Smith of Haliburton Baptist Church, conducted a very interesting service in the chapel, this lovely August day. We thank him for coming and Fred Ballard too.

Eda Shorter's daughter came from Florida all the way to visit with her mother in their town house for a few days.

The candidates came to call. The first who came was William Scott. He said I have just come to call whether you vote for me or not.

The next came Liberal Bruce Glass, who said I thought I would call on you, I'm travelling first class. His travelling companion was a young lady from out of town, her name is Miss Dianne

Local student nurses learn at Huntsville

SUBMITTED

For the second year three Canadore College nursing diploma students, two of them from the Wilberforce area, are practising at Huntsville District Memorial Hospital. Their 14 week consolidation period provides a final, full practical experience before major comprehensive exams are written in November. This, however, is not the last hurdle, as each student must write provincial registration exams in January, 1985.

Jane Taylor, age 20, from Wilberforce, and is currently residing in the Huntsville area. She comes from a family of five. She enjoys working with people, and gains satisfaction in providing professional assistance to ill or infirm patients. From the Chamber

These are the days to try men's souls. These are, for instance, days when I actually believe it is the best of times. However these are interspersed with occasions when it surely must be the worst of times... or at least close to it. So says John Milne of Milne Associates, Northern Ontario Business News. I think all members would agree. This is probably an appropriate opening to this week's column.

However there is one bright spot on the horizon - we have had our first meeting with Canadian Employment and Immigration Canada, regarding a local employment assistance and development program, (LEAD) which provides federal funds for the creation of jobs in communities with high unemployment. The objective is to stimulate employment growth and local development center, becoming wedged amongst the twigs, where-upon their tube departed without them. Being plucky girls, we never panicked. Seeing their predicament, after having preceded them, I grabbed a couple of branches to stop my forward progress. Then, hanging on, I waded slowly back upstream. With great difficulty, for the water is deep here, we caught their tube and passed it back up to the dam. Then one girl tossed it out to the first rescuer. Now all she had to do was figure out how to get back on it while straddling an unsteady bunch of twigs with empty-seven thousand gallons of rushing water at her feet. But she made it. Then we had to repeat the process for the second girl. She had a lot more trouble because she didn't have the first girl to lean on. But after several attempts, she, too made the descent. Too her credit, Judy never batted an eye, but steadfastly recorded the whole event on film, while fighting the current, waist-high in water. Global news must have a place for her.

Judy got her come-uppance last week. She decided to make the journey in a smaller tube. She went over the dam okay. She also went over the tube, and under the tube, and under the water. It was like a free jacuzzi.

Alas, I think we've made our final trip of the summer. The water and the air are both cooling down. The sun forgot to shine on Sunday, and by next week, we'll probably have had a frost. So, I guess it's back to reality, and the wonderful, profuse, unending, unweeded garden. My lungs have been pickled with vinegar fumes, the cold room and the freezer are filling up. And I'm searching desperately for a recipe for burdock.

directly related to community needs and priorities, in helping with regional development strategies.

LEAD achieves its purpose by creating local development corporations and funding projects that will generate new permanent jobs for community residents.

This project is only in the proposal stage. A committee has been formed and a Board of Directors will be selected to draw up the proposal. Your Chamber of Commerce will be actively involved on an ongoing basis.

We are told from time to time that the market place is changing. One of the most difficult things to do is to identify the trend and to be ready before the actual change takes place. By the time the general public is aware that change has taken place, we have already lost ground. Marketing Magazine has carried an interesting article on mass marketing.

They say there is no more mass market and because of its disappearance advertising agencies and their clients are facing a crisis in how to market their products.

Marketers are losing access to mass markets, mass media and mass merchandising as a result of the social trend toward individualism. That is changing the whole approach to selling.

Marketers who want to stay in touch with changing consumer values will have to look more closely at individual needs, keeping in mind that more and more of today's consumers are making decisions for themselves.

The problem facing marketers is they have to learn to sell their messages by giving the consumer sufficient value in terms of entertainment, education or information - value that will generate attention and commitment in return.

The following is a letter directed to the president of the Ontario Convention Bureau from Rueben Baetz, Minister of Tourism, regarding a bus tour to be arranged by Mr. Baetz to promote tourism in Ontario. The objective is to give all Tourism Manager's a first hand experience of what Ontario has to offer the travelling public. Haliburton will be included in this familiarization tour, which we are sure will receive the appropriate media coverage. The tour is scheduled to run late fall or early spring.

Mr. Allan Herrington, Kingston,
President, OACB
Dear Allan,

I thoroughly enjoyed my evening with the members of the Ontario Association of Convention Bureaux.

As I mentioned during my remarks, the tourism industry has become highly competitive, but that is not to say that Ontario lacks the potential to hold its own as a major tourism destination. I am

The day Cooney finally came home

by AGNES BORTHWICK

As every cat lover can verify - I don't own Cooney - she owns me - and she it is who calls the shots. She goes out when she wants out and usually returns home about 2 a.m., with never an explanation as to what she had been doing all that time.

She came to my door one terrible night during the Christmas season, about 12 years ago. The snow was piled mountains high right past the window sill - the driveway was impassable, but, believe it or not, at the height of the storm, I was awakened by a sort of whimper at the door. On investigating, I found a snowball with (as I thought) the tail of a raccoon. I picked it up and wrapped it in a warm towel, and found to my surprise, my raccoon was a tiny little kitten. She proceeded to make herself at home and expected only the best treatment. I kept her overnight, and next morning put her out and told her to go home. This didn't suit her at all - she climbed up on the hill of snow at the window, and with her tiny paws on the window pane, demanded to be let in. As it was obvious she was someone's pet, I did all I could to find out where she came from, but nobody had ever heard of her, and she didn't seem to care - she had definitely made up her mind - she was home, and home she has stayed all these years, and has behaved like any normal cat until around the middle of August each year, she gets a touch of midsummer madness, or the seven year itch, or whatever, stays away for two days and two nights, and returns in the early morning, looking guilty, but smug.

This year was a bit different - two days and two nights went past and she hadn't returned home, so I went looking for her, and all my young friends, Kirk, Scott, Chad, Jonathan, Noelle and Danielle all kept a lookout for the missing Cooney, but without success, until on the 5th day I heard her meowing somewhere in the bushes around Dr. and Mrs. Good's bird house. She didn't come home, however, and I was devastated. Up early on the morning of the sixth day, I went without hope, to open the door, and there she was, a bit bedraggled but triumphant - God's in his Heaven, all's right with the world, Cooney came home!

Thoughts on a perfect day ...

by H. JEAN BROWN

Today has been a perfect day
From cloudless dawn to sunset sky.
Too swift the happy hours fly,
Yet each one well and truly spent
In quiet joy and deep content,
Without not one ache or pain.

Today has been a friendly day.
My next door neighbour passing by
Has just dropped in to bring a pie.
The postman stopped to chat with me.
He brought three letters, Count 'em, three.
And not a single bill to pay.

Today has been a loving day.
My daughters phone. They worry so,
They think I'm growing old, you know.
And then, my only son came by,
To cut the grass (and eat my pie)
And check to see I'm still okay.

Lord, this is now a thankful day,
Though thanks enough I cannot say
Or get down on my knees to pray.
But you will hear me anyway.

Of "Wee Folk"

Partially Printed August 8, 1984

Walk in, if you wish, go there, if you dare,
To the great, deep forest, but go there with care.
Seek where you can, find, if you will,
The reason the forest is hushed and so still.
Think of the old stories, recall an old song,
For some could be right, though many are wrong
When they tell of the gnomes, of the fairies, and elves
Who live in the woods and are not like ourselves.
"Little People", they call them, and the name fits quite true
For they only reach up to the kneeheight of you.
But if you go seeking, you won't likely find

Minden News

by MAIZIE AUSTEN
Charlie Palmer of Lindsay has moved to his new residence in Minden. We wish him all the best in his new home.

A thought for the day ... You can not spend all your life going along for the ride. Sooner or later you will have to pull the wagon.

There will be a Klondike Jubilee in Gooderham on Saturday, September 8. They will have oldtime events from lumberjack to tug-of-war. It sounds like a fun day for all.

There will be an open slalom at the Minden White Water Preserve, south of the Horseshoe dam on Sunday, September 9.

For those snowmobilers who just can't wait for the snow to fall, there will be sanctioned grass drags at the Minden Fair grounds on Saturday, September 15.

Congratulations to Mr. & Mrs. Lester Hicks who celebrated their 25 Anniversary last week.

Sincere sympathy to the family and friends of Alvin Barron.

The card party at the Library/Cultural Centre will be held Thursday, September 6.

I hope you all got out to vote. Some of the people who don't go to vote do nothing but complain about who got in and what the candidate doesn't do.

Drive with a little more care and caution and watch out for the younger generation, now that they have started back to school.

Household Hint: Lime to remove lime that gathers in the tub or toilet, etc., put javex, vinegar and water in it and let it stand over night. The vinegar dissolves the lime, and the bleach removes the stains.

If you have any news for me to include in my column, please call 286-3607. Thank you.

I noticed a piece in the paper last week about the candidates signs being torn down. At the corner of Highway 121 and Highway 35, the signs were taken down, torn up and scattered all over the ground last week.

Recipe for this week: I hope you try it and enjoy it. Campbellton Casserole - 1 cup celery, 1 pound of hamburger, 1 large onion, 1 can of tomato soup, 1/2 cup water, 1 can bean sprouts, 1 can of mushrooms, 2 tablespoons soya sauce, salt and pepper to taste and 1/4 tspn. of curry and or thyme. Chop onion and brown in a large frying pan, add celery and mushrooms. Brown meat, mix and add soup, liquid and remaining ingredients. Bake 30 minutes. Serve over hot rice.

That's all for this week. Drive carefully and don't forget the school children. I hope to see you all next week.

The many visitors to the area on the long weekend included Mr. and Mrs. Claude Woodcock, Barbara and Greg Sheppard and family, Pat Smyth, Brenda & Marilyn Gibbon, all of Toronto. Al and Marie Cooper of Woodstock, Byron and Sylvia Sisson of Elliot Lake, Randy, Bonnie and Jason Jennings, of Newcastle.

Joe and May Yateman with grandchildren Sara and Ryan, Tom and Helen Yateman, Jackie and Keith Sheridan and his brother Mark Sheridan were all guests of Laurel and Charlie Yateman of Grass Lake.

Recreation Centre news: a new committee is in process of formation. Volunteers are needed in various areas. Nominations will be accepted for a two year term at the September 13th meeting. Come one and all and support the committee with your talent and interest.

Also this month the wonderful singers from Oshawa whom we heard last year, the Barbershoppers, will be entertaining on the fourth Saturday evening.

These youngsters took shelter from Sunday's rain under umbrellas but continued to offer suckers for sale at the Kinmount Fair. Attendance at the Fair was down marginally because of Sunday's weather, but Saturday the Fair was packed.

"The human race is divided into two classes - those who go ahead and do something and those who sit back and say 'Why wasn't it done the other way?'"

The Labour Day holiday has taken flight for another year and with it many of our summer visitors have left for their homes in the various cities further south. The children are back in school and most of them are happy to be back with their friends and on regular hours again.

Of course, there will be some who will miss sleeping in all mornings they wish to, but will soon get used to rising and having a hearty breakfast with their parents. The federal election is over and although some will be disappointed in the results I am sure everyone wishes for an improvement in the state of the nation. No one can expect miracles and I am sure it would take one to bring prosperity back to the country in the near future. But we all hope that the powers that be will get busy immediately and start trying to decrease our great indebtedness, if nothing else. I heard on the news this morning that 33 cents of every tax dollar goes to paying the interest on the national debt. Mind boggling, to say the least, and very depressing.

To something more cheerful the Dorset Lions fish derby will be held at Camp Dorset on Saturday, September 15. Fish may be caught in any fishing waters and must be weighed in at Camp Dorset by 5 p.m. on the day of the derby. Dinner will be served from 5:30 to 7 p.m. & the cost is $5. Advance tickets may be purchased from any Lion member or from Gina Baum. Advance tickets are advised. Children under 12 pay only $2.50.

Refreshments will be available after 4 p.m.

We have some early September birthdays to celebrate, first belatedly, Sarah Nash who was 7 on September 4 and Elsie Burk who celebrated on the 2nd. Congratulations to both. Best wishes to Eldred MacKay who has a birthday on the 9th and to my twin yearlings.

Walt Taylor who catches up with me on September 11. Many happy returns to each and everyone.

Some news on the trip to the races. The return bus fare will be $12 and must be paid by September 10. However, if you plan on going you should call 766-2605 and let Ralph know so that he can

We are pleased to have Bill's sister "Mame" back to our house from her stay in Toronto. "Mame" says she thinks she just may stay on in Canada. She has been living in Florida for many years, so I'm not so sure she could go our winters after such a long absence. Time will tell.

While Ruth and her daughter, Amy Schultz were along the road from their home picking choke cherries one day last week, a call for help from the river was heard by Ruth, who at first thought it may be youngsters fooling around and then decided to check anyway. It was a very good decision because Ambrose Ferren of Three Brothers Falls and a visiting friend, Cecil Fitzgerald who had been on the Burnt River in a motorboat had hit a "deadhead" and had overturned. Neither of the two men could swim so were in dire need of immediate help. Ruth and Amy got their canoe into the waters and headed for the men. Amy got out of the canoe and into the water where she pulled the boat, men hanging on, into the shore. Next day the men showed up at the Schultz home bearing a gift of a beautiful plant and card, showing their appreciation. They said they were fine but stiff from holding onto the boat, but very thankful to be alive. Congratulations to all concerned in a story that turned out happily.

Another improvement in our main street is the new black roofing on the Kinvale Restaurant. It's just in time for our big fair weekend too.

Don't forget the Kinmount and District Horticultural annual Houseplant & Vegetable show to be held at the Kinmount Community Centre on Thursday, September 13, 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Admission is adults $1.00, children 25 cents. A light lunch of prize winning loaves and tea, coffee, orange drink will be served. Door prizes and good people to meet. Come out and enjoy a friendly hour or two.

On Sunday, August 26, at South Lake Trailer Park, a birthday party was held in honour of Malcolm and Claude Crego. Along with the many family and friends from Kinmount there were guests: Reg and Donna Crego and daughter Ashley, Ward and Liz, Luther and Lou Ann with their family, all of Toronto. Bonnie and Fred Mulock with their children from Woodville and their Aunt, Colleen Crego from Lindsay. A very nice time was enjoyed by all. Happy birthday boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Khignesse and Marion have been travelling this summer and among other places, they stopped at Sudbury, Thunder Bay, Manitoulin Island and spent a few days last week at the home of Bill and Dora Lilley. The Khignesse family hails from Ottawa. Also visiting with the Lilley's were Gerry Smith and his family of Orangeville.

Another place of business has started up in our town at the previous premises of "Pat and Elaine's Bake Shop". It is called Fuzzy's and deals in soft drinks, candy, chips, etc. All the best in your endeavours.

Gooderham News

Reggie and Brenda McCrea of Oshawa visited with their grandmother, Nellie MacDuff and aunt, Susie Madill.

Basil Hunter, with his wife, Nancy and two children from Brampton, spent a few days last week in Gooderham before he returns to his teaching duties.

Fourteen members of the Gourmet Club in Bowmanville spent last weekend at the Doug James cottage on Pine Lake.

Beulah and Gordon Barr spent last weekend with their daughter and son-in-law, Ruth and Tom Kendall at Bracebridge.

Grace Billings accompanied her sister, Rita Bailey of Fenelon Falls and her brother, Roy, of Chatham, on a motor trip through Cochrane and Hearst to Nakina where Rita's son is stationed at the air base. On her return, her granddaughter, Betty Russell, from Lindsay, and her son spent a few days with her.

June Tousignant of Hamilton spent three weeks with her sister, Margaret Pickens and Dallyn.

We are pleased to report that Walter Leveck is progressing favourably in the Haliburton Hospital and expects to be home soon. He is being treated for a blood clot in his leg.

Emma Lynas and Belle Lynas of Toronto visited their brother, Walter Madill and Marjorie recently. While here they also visited Susie Madill.

The Red Cross swimming course under the instruction of Joanne Coumbs concluded August 24. This was well patronized and quite successful.

Those who passed the "Water Safety Survival" course were: Corey Hunter, Michael Billings, Tony Billings, Jason Billings, Mark Slade, and Kristy Sauve. In the colours the following received awards: Yellow - Brendon Optis. Orange - Michelle Dovell. Red - Stuart Taylor, Colin Taylor, Patrick Taylor, Eddie Madill, Erin Pettit. Maroon - Kelly Preece, Wayne Barr, Jimmy Dewey, Patrick Taylor, Eddie Madill, Stuart Taylor, Colin Taylor, Erin Pettit. Blue - Patrick Taylor, Green - Corey Hunter, Julie Clarence, Kristy Sauve, Mark Slade, Grey - Elizabeth Barr, Jason

Billings, White - Kenny Sauve, Jason Stoughton, Scott Hunter, Elizabeth Barr.

Five adults took the basic swimming course - an innovation this year. These were: Sandra Dovell, Billy Schomberg, Elva Bates, Mary Slade and Anne Sheard. Melanie Dewey, who was beach assistant and Robin McCausland were successful in their Leaders' course. Congratulations, swimmers. Sincere thanks to the efficient instructor Joanne Coumbs.

At the Senior Citizens' meeting on Wednesday evening we were saddened to hear that Mrs. Storey, mother of Ileen Hunter, had passed away in the North Western General Hospital, Toronto. She had broken her hip and underwent surgery for a replacement of the joint. She put up a brave fight but in her 93rd year, it seemed too much.

Funeral services were held on Saturday, September 1 in Toronto. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family.

Diane Madill left on Monday, September 3 to start her training as an RNA in Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay. Good luck Diane.

On Tuesday, August 28 the Deckhands from Kingston presented two puppet shows in the Glamorgan library to a small but enthusiastic group of children and a few adults.

The first show was "Oliver" written by Deckhand, Ian Grant. This interesting show told the story of Oliver who has no head and goes on a journey for several days to find and buy a head. He meets up with an artist, a sculptor, and a carpenter who all give him a head but something happens to each and when he meets his fairy godmother she gives him a wish. He wishes to go home safely and forgets about a new head.

The second show was called "The Vinganance and the Tree Toad". The Vinganance is the villain, a large, black, hairy creature who menaces the lion, spider and rat that live together. He eats their dinner every day. The tree toad sings them to sleep every night and he finally vanquishes the Vinganances.

This talented trio kept the children busy with motion songs between acts, and brought the puppets out from behind the curtain to show the children after the show.

Private Bradley Robinson, son of Charles and Barbara Robinson of Redstone Lake, Haliburton, graduated from Canadian Forces Recruit School Basic Training at Cornwallis, Nova Scotia on August 30. Brad will continue his Artillery training course at CFB Shilo, Manitoba.

Then, should you surprise one at work, or at play,
Consider that this is your happiest day.

Weavers

These busy weavers, crafters
With time-old skills,
Have woven through the ages
In sheerest gauze.
Their patterns, a tradition
To each being given,
And each serving perfectly
That purpose for which
It, through eons, did evolve.
From deep within,
The instinct ever surfaced
To materialize in silk,
Fine drawn and finely spun
Into form so intricate
Or, even yet so simple
That we must pause
To gaze in awe and admiration.

In design that delights our eyes,
Here, from day's morning dew
The sparkling gems are strung
In wondrous, fragile beauty
On a spider's web, fresh spun.

Dinner guests of Mary and John Pyke on Wednesday, August 29 were Lori Lynn Liscombe, Arnold and Dar-count noses and plan accordingly. This trip is open to all ages and from any area.

We have a new family that has moved into the community, Chuck and Jenny Reed, who built a home on Paint Lake and are residing there with their young daughter Robyn. Chuck is retired from the armed services and Jenny's parents are Frank and Jeanette Large. We welcome them to the community and hope they enjoy living in our midst.

Jack and Irene Clayton made a trip to the Ex to attend the Willie Nelson concert. They report that the grandstand was packed, they had excellent seats and enjoyed a musical evening.

When letters were the main way that heads of state informed one another of plans, visits, threats and disagreements it seemed a lot safer than using those red phones they tell us are in each country's inner sanctum to be used in times of danger.

Shall we tell them to write letters instead?

I haven't had a call yet from the NDP. We wonder who is going to win, we will just have to wait & see.

Fred Ballard came Tuesday night, fine organ music he does play. We can count on Fred most every day.

Wednesday morning down at fun & fitness Lily Hogg won the game for all to witness.

Jack Stewart has returned from a few days holiday. We really missed you Jack, when you were away.

Thursday afternoon the members of St. Stevens ladies guild, who live around Hall's Lake, not only brought a lunch but a birthday cake. We had a birthday party for those who had birthday's in August. The food was good, we thought we should, try to clean up every crust. They also brought a special guest, we'll call her Kathy K. She had a birthday this very same day. She sang so lovely for us and gave us all a thrill. Please all come back again some day. We truly hope you will.

Our faithfuls, Ray and Marjory Usher came Friday night as they came each day before. But this was their last day, they won't be coming anymore. Ray is a great piano player, with a cottage on Canning Lake. We're going to miss you when you move back to Richmond Hill.

You're still young if the morning after the night before still makes the night before worth the morning after.

Naturalists

exactly the same as being "eaten". But researchers have found definite proof that Sundews actually digest their prey. By feeding insects containing radioactive phosphorous to experimental plants, scientists found that the plant soon became radioactive themselves, proving that the phosphorous was indeed incorporated by the plants into their own tissues. The amazing thing is that almost all the usable phosphorous contained in the insects' bodies was taken up by the plant in just 24 hours. Considering this was accomplished in spite of the indigestible skeletons of the insects, it really makes you wonder how the Sundews' juices would work on your little finger if given a chance for a few hours.

Why did these plants develop such peculiar dining habits? The answer can be found in their environment. The sorts of places Sundews grow in, such as mats of sphagnum moss in bogs, old weather beaten logs, and roadsides with exposed mineral soil, are all acidic, quite sterile environments with very limited supplies of important nutrients such as phosphorous and nitrogen needed by every plant and animal. Faced with this challenge to meeting their nutritional requirements in the normal way, some plants, over millions of years of evolution, found a new, if unconventional, food source. Insects.

When you think about it there is nothing unnatural at all in this behaviour. Sundews have simply adapted to their surroundings in order to survive. And their taste in food offers some real benefits to us too. If you examine any of the insect carcasses on a Sundew, you'll likely find mosquitos and blackflies.

LET'S SEE YOU DO IT... OUTDOORS!
